TURNED TRAITOR. General Rivas Directs His Forces Against His Capitol.

LA LIBERTAD, VIA GALVESTON, July 31. Lis reported that General Rivas, who was recently recalled from Honduras by the government to raise troops around the Coadjustepec and join the main army operating against the Guatemalan frontier, turned traitor after having had a hand-some reception in the capitol. When he was supposed to be on his way to the frontier, he turned back his forces of 2,000 Indians toward the capitol and stormed the barracks. There fighting has been going on two days but no details have been received, as communication has been interrupted since. General Rivas started the revolution against the Menendez government some months ago but was de-feated. He then fled to Honduras.

THE DAMAGE AT BUENOS AYRES.

BUENOS AYRES, July 31.— During the insurrection here the Iron-clad fleet, which had joined the revolutionary movement, bombarded the city for two days. A German's Criticism. "What dignified people you Americans are!" said a German on a ferryboat from Staten Island to New York Sunday night. "I fancy there are 300 persons on this boat, and probably two-thirds of them can sing. If you should find that number of Germans together anywhere on the face of the earth out for a holiday you would find them singing. Yet the Germans are no richer in popular songs or in voices that can sing them ordinarily well than the Americans. You are fond of music and your ear catches you don't show it. Summer Night Dresses.

The fashion of the moment is trimming underlinen with narrow insertion, through which baby ribben is run. The cellars when turned down should reach to the shoulders and the wide cuffs almost to the elbow, being tied with wider ribbon to match the narrow at the neck and cuffs. These nightgowns open the entire length with lace and have a full of lace at the hem. They are generally gathered at the waist, so that they look like a full bedice, but of course without in any way confining the figure. Sometimes the cuffs of nightgowns are made straight, turning upward, with a double hem of silk or batiste of some positive color joined on to the white with narrow veining insertion. Occasionally the color is introduced as small embroidered florets worked in flax threads, Very full frillings, with a buttenhole of color at the edge, are put on almost as full as the lisse frills on parasols. Nightgowns are made with pretty outside pockets on the left breast, and the monogram or ini-tials are often placed on a shield shaped

Breakfast Gowns.

Pink and blue are the favorite colors for breakfast gowns. Mauve and green are more trying shades. White is affected by those whose complexions are fresh enough to stand it. A very pretty pink gown made of the new crepe cloth was cut rather low at the throat—in a point in front—and finished with a band of gold and a cream lace ruffle. There were wide, loose sleeves to the elbow and duplicate sleeves of lace from the elbow to the wrist, edged with a gold band. The waist was encircled by a gold band. This was a very attractive gown, and cheap, too. A white spotted muslin gown was rather more novel, but not so pretty. There was a good deal of embroidery about the neck, with several rows of green ribbon run in and out of it. The ribbon fastened in bows in front. The same idea was applied to the waist. The gown was further ornamented with a double cape reaching to the shoulders. This was trimmed round with Valenciennes

The New Trimmings. We hear a great deal of the revival of fringe; but it has not as yet got much hold in Paris, and we are inclined to think that it is more talked of than worn in England. Fine silk guipure and jet work are applied to a great many different shapes of Bolero jackets, intended for bodices and mantles Sometimes they are accompanied by high upstanding collars and short pointed pieces, forming a species of yoke, with high epau-lets. The Bolero is a little different from the Figaro, being shallower and rounder and for the moment the former is most worn, but both styles are fashionable, and you cannot do wrong in selecting a bodice trimming of the kind. Tennis and Cycling Gowns. Outing fabrics, half wool and half cotton, light in weight and attractive in pattern and coloring, are much used dresses to be worn in the tennis court, on the bicycle and for general country wear.

A full blouse with English skirt, or a blazer with shirt waist and round skirt like the model shown in the illustration, are popular ways of making up these

Stop and Think.

It is best to stop and think twice before women were once soliciting subscriptions for a charitable institution, when one who was checking off names asked: "Have you seen Mrs. Blank yet?"

"No." was the vahement and indignant reply, "I must say I have not, nor do I mean to see her. I would not ask for a cent if I never got one. She is not only economical and close, she is positively stingy. She says she cannot afford to give to churches; she cannot afford to give to pospitals; she cannot afford to give to any-Potash for Grape Vines.

The fertilizer chiefly needed for grape vines is potash. Other manures may make a stronger growth of leaf and wood, but petash is needed in perfecting the fruit. French and other European vine growers fertilize their vineyards by plowing under the prunings. This, if the soil is heavy, helps to keep the land light and perus, while the green wood speedily decays and returns to the soil whatever potash it had abstracted. But if the land be sandy this return is not enough. More petash must be applied or the fruit will suffer and the vine itself will have Its vitality weakened.
